FOREWORD

“To Get The Picture”

To get the picture, one starts with a very versatile, creative tool—the camera. For many of us, a good camera not only has the flexibility to accept a wide range of interchangeable lenses but is also automatic and simple to use. There are lenses that literally broaden your horizons, while others give you great depth-of-field. Still, other lenses work like a telescope, enabling you to bring distant objects closer.

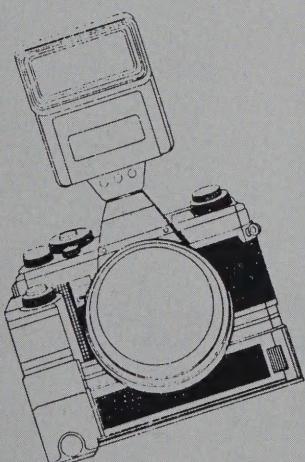

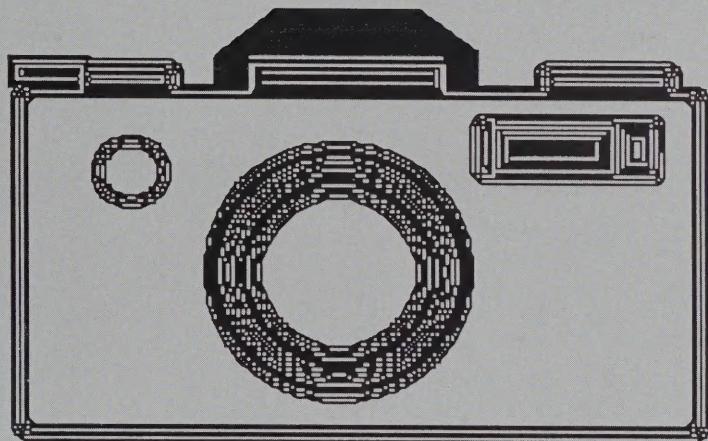

The "camera" serves as an excellent symbol for illustrating our efforts to focus on school year 1987-88 and to compose a picture that covers the highlights. We think the picture presented herein is a product of an amazingly uncluttered viewfinder that gives you a totally unobstructed view of the year that was. In some cases, we have tried to give you the "whole picture." In doing this, we attempted to keep people in the foreground and behind the main subject, sharp and clear.

At other times, our aim was to bring distant objects or people closer, isolate an individual in a crowd, or shoot beautiful portraits of individuals who make up the college community. In these pictures, we felt it was desirable to keep the background out of focus.

To get the picture of the 1987-88 school year has been a fascinating, unusually rewarding experience. It is our hope that as you focus the lens of your internal camera on each page of the 1988 "ARCH," the picture you get will be, for you, a sound investment in satisfaction and enjoyment.

FRAMING THE VISION

While many people work on each of the College's programs, it is the president, above all others, who influences the priorities, finds the money, approves the plans, and insures their implementation. While many people work on various parts of the College's mission, it is the president who frames the vision contained in the College's Mission Statement.

For the above reasons, the West Virginia State College community, on September 1, 1987, welcomed to the College, its ninth president, Dr. Hazo Carter. Dr. Carter succeeds Dr. Thomas W. Cole, Jr., who left the WVSC presidency in October 1986 to become Chancellor of the West Virginia Board of Regents.

The new president holds a doctor of education degree from Vanderbilt University, a master of science degree in journalism from the University of Illinois, and a bachelor's degree in English from Tennessee State University.

Dr. Carter became president of the Philander Smith College in Little Rock, Arkansas following several years at Norfolk State University where he was Vice President for Student Affairs, associate professor of journalism, Assistant Vice President for Student Affairs, and executive assistant to the president.

While studying for his doctorate, Dr. Carter was Director of the Career Guidance Institute for the National Alliance of Business at George Peabody College for Teachers at Vanderbilt. He served two years as Public Information Officer for the Tennessee Department of Mental Health.

In 1985, Dr. Carter received a Presidential Citation for his work on behalf of economically disadvantaged citizens and needy youth. The award was a result of his ten years of service with the National Alliance of Business Cluster Program. Other honors he has received include the Jaycees "Outstanding Young Men of America" award, Tennessee State University's Highest Achievement Award in Education, and a commendation from Los Angeles Mayor, Tom Bradley, for outstanding

During his first year at the college, one of the most admired qualities that Dr. Carter has demonstrated is good judgment--his ability to know the dimensions of a situation and his capacity to choose the best course for its improvement. The weight of his judgment was enhanced by the calm and quiet manner in which he presented it after the passion of others had subsided. He demonstrated the art of presenting the most constructive suggestion at the carefully chosen, most appropriate moment and of advancing it in a fashion that did not challenge personal opposition.

For Dr. Carter, school year 1987-88 must have been exciting, demanding, surprising, at times very satisfying, and occasionally great fun. For his broad and diverse constituencies in the college community, school year 1987-88 was the year the college got a leader to frame the vision.

INSTITUTIONAL PLANNING &

A continuous study of West Virginia State College is the primary purpose of the Office of Planning and Institutional Advancement. In addition to providing continuity of institutional self-scrutiny and supplying administrative officers and faculty with data, information, and special analyses, institutional research provides a basic set of facts and statistical information imperative in decisions of how to best meet certain kinds of problems with logic.

Under the competent leadership of Stephen Batson, Vice President for Planning and Institutional Advancement, the office oversees the divisions of Alumni Affairs and Public Information. Together, these offices combine to support the Mission Statement of West Virginia State College.

To understand the potential and benefit from organized alumni involvement in education, one must recognize four groups -- students, faculty, administration, and alumni -- and how they can produce a more viable institution capable of meeting the demands placed upon it by society. The role of the alumnus has the least obvious function in the life of the institution and therefore, the most difficult role to define in the formulation of policy and the governance of the institution.

WVSC's office of Alumni Affairs, headed by Grover Smiley, Jr., is the main communications link between the College and its alumni. Homecoming is the busiest time of the year for this department and year after year Homecoming activities prove successful due to the coordination efforts of Alumni Affairs.

ALUMNI AFFAIRS

The office of Development and College Relations, under the guidance of C.O. Carlini, has, as its major function, the promotion of activities which are necessary for the continuing growth of the College. The development program, although primarily fund-raising in nature, is approached in the broader sense of greater acceptance, understanding, participation, and support from its many publics.

The WVSC Foundation, Inc., maintains several scholarship funds supported by donations, endowment income, and other sources. Scholarships vary in amounts, purposes, and student eligibility. Some are limited to students majoring in specific fields, some are based in part on financial need, and some are available only to students from certain localities.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Public relations is the conscious development of positive attitudes toward an organization through all avenues of communication over a long period of time. WVSC's Public Information Office is headed by John R. Hendrickson who, among his other duties, supervises the college photographer, Todd Griffith. Public relations does not function under crisis conditions only, but must be in operation at all times to achieve a maximum of utility and to stave off successfully the attacks that may come from any quarter.

Public relations is human relations. Those outside the public information office often view the work as at best a necessary evil; but when evidence is presented, through news, publications, or whatever, in the proper handling of information both good and bad, they, too often see the wisdom of sound public relations procedures.

Public information activities must be regarded as a long-term investment, one from which there may not be gained immediate results. While certain of its activities, particularly those serving other institutional areas, may have immediate and real results, it is the long-term investment in an organized effort at identifying and serving the several and changing publics of the College that will have the real effect. Public relations is not a transitory aspect, only invoked to ward off a storm or to launch a new program, but rather is the continuing effort to inform the public to the advantage of the school.

REGISTRATION

The purpose of the Drain-Jordan Library is to provide primary support for the educational programs of the college. There are more than 200,000 books and 1,300 current periodical subscriptions available in the library. Additionally, there are 20,000 bound periodical volumes and more than 500,000 items in microfilm in the collection.

▼ Admissions is the first contact potential students have with WVSC. The impression these students receive very well may make the difference in whether they become a "State" student or go to some other college. The helpful guidance and friendly welcome the staff of Admissions present to the public ensure that our student population will continue to grow.

BOR/ NONTRADITIONAL PROGRAMS

The concept of the Regents BA Degree is awarding credit for significant learning regardless of where that learning took place. Rather than requiring adults to study content which they have already mastered, the Regents BA program makes provision for accrediting such mastery. In addition, there is an opportunity to receive credits for significant life learning that differs from but is of equal quality with college learning.

The mission of the office of Residence Life and Services is to assimilate students into the campus community and its academic life and to provide support for students so they can learn and grow in a safe, satisfying, stimulating environment.

Career Planning is a developmental process faced by most students. Therefore, as part of the educational experience, Career Planning and Placement Services are made available to all students during their tenure at WVSC. These services encompass activities in career counseling for individuals and groups, including the development of career decision-making skills through the use of "SIGI," a computerized career selection program; providing career information from the unit's library; and in conducting career planning and developmental workshops throughout the school year.

As students progress toward degree completion or after they have received their degrees, getting a job or going to graduate/professional school tends to become very important to them. The Office of Career Planning and Placement, 216 Wallace Hall, strives to assist students in obtaining part-time employment, summer jobs, full-time employment or entry into a graduate/professional school.

INTRODUCING WEST VIRGINIA STATE COLLEGE MISSION

WVSC, located in the state's center of government, industry, business, and population is the largest institution of higher education in the Kanawha Valley and serves as a major resource center for this metropolitan area. The College provides a broad spectrum of undergraduate degree programs, both baccalaureate and associate, for residential and commuting students and offers a comprehensive schedule of classes to an exceptionally large population of evening students.

Founded in 1891, WVSC attained national prominence as an institution of higher education for Blacks, and it continues to serve as a center of Black culture among its specialities. Voluntary desegregation in 1954 created a distinctive "living laboratory of human relations," attracting a racially and culturally diverse student body, faculty, and staff. The College cherishes its unique history and its reputation for safeguarding academic freedom, for being innovative in its scholastic programs, and for removing barriers to education and leadership for women, minorities, and the handicapped.

The College's primary mission focuses on strong baccalaureate degree programs in the arts and sciences and in professional studies. Additional educational needs are met with an expanding community college component, technical and career programs directed at training and retraining adults for employment, nontraditional courses and programs, cooperative education internships, and delivery systems and services offered for the adult/nontraditional population.

DIVISION OF NATURAL SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS

ANDREW AHEART, CHAIR

BIOLOGY -- The Department of Biology offers courses designed to enhance the scientific and technological literacy of all college students, courses for students with an avocational interest in living organisms, and courses for students interested in a career in science or medicine.

CHEMISTRY -- Chemistry involves the study of all matter in all of its possible ramifications--including physical and chemical changes, qualitative and quantitative studies, and synthesis. Chemistry is the basic science for medicine, bio-chemistry, molecular biology, health physics, environmental protection, chemical engineering, etc. A large percentage of our chemistry graduates go on to higher education in medical, dental and graduate schools.

MATHEMATICS -- The Department of Mathematics endeavors first, through required and elective courses, to give students a sound background for a basic understanding of the various sciences; second, to give to prospective teachers a professional attitude, a strong subject matter foundation and adequate skills and techniques in the application and the teaching of the material; and third, to show students that mathematics is a living and vital science by seeing it applied in the classroom and in the various fields of industry.

PHYSICS -- The Physics Department provides students with strong academic foundations for entering professional careers as health physicists, radiation safety officers and nuclear medicine technologists. Charleston General, Charleston Memorial, Herbert J. Thomas and St. Francis Hospitals participate in the nuclear medicine program by providing the clinical training.

DIVISION OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

CRIMINAL JUSTICE -- The purpose of the criminal justice curricula is to prepare the students for effective, intelligent law enforcement activities. Students who satisfactorily complete a program will be equipped to actively participate in general law enforcement activities as workers, as administrators of law enforcement agencies, and as supervisors of correctional institutions.

EDUCATION -- Changes in society continue to influence the educational process. What is dynamic today in teaching may be static tomorrow. How education is organized for the rest of the century will be a troublesome task, but one that must be accomplished in ways that facilitate learning in every fluctuating social circumstance. Teachers must learn to revise and adapt accepted patterns of education and assimilate new discoveries in accordance with present public criteria and one's own beliefs.

HPRS -- The Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Safety Department offers a degree in Recreation Service, subject specializations in Safety Education, Physical Education, and minors in Recreation and in Safety Management. The concern for student interest in physical fitness and related sports activity is met through the physical education activity classes.

INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY -- The Department of Industrial Technology offers a four-year Bachelor of Science Degree in Architectural Technology, and Building Construction Technology. As a part of the Community College Component, it offers two-year associate degree programs in Architectural Drafting, Building Construction, and Electronics. The department also offers most of the courses for the first two years of Engineering.

ROTC -- Army ROTC adds practical management training and leadership experiences to students' chosen academic pursuits to prepare them to become Army officers.

SOCIAL WORK -- Students planning a career in social work follow a prescribed course of study which leads to a Bachelor of Science degree in Social Work. The program provides a comprehensive education which will enable the student to work with individuals, communities, groups and organizations as a beginning professional practitioner in the field of social work.

ART -- The objective of the Art Department is to develop understanding and sensitiveness in individuals so that they may increase their skill and gain knowledge in the field of art; grow as creative artists; stimulate creative activity in their students; understand the works of others; influence their homes and communities with judgments based on aesthetic principles; and prepare them for graduate study in the arts.

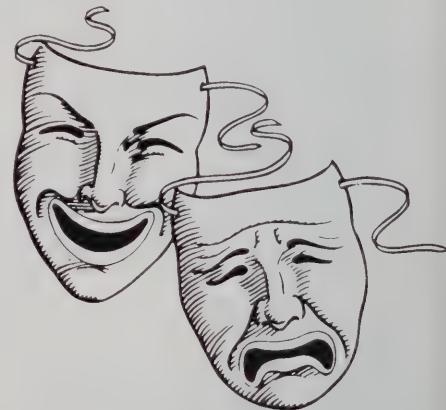

COMMUNICATIONS -- The Communications Department programs of study are designed to provide the interested student with undergraduate competencies in the theoretical and applied forms and processes of communications. Particular emphasis is placed upon studies in the general areas of human, public, and mass communications, concentrating on the areas of radio/TV broadcasting, film, theatre and speech.

ENGLISH -- The courses offered by the Department of English are designed to help the student develop the language competencies needed for teaching; for advanced study; for research; for a variety of writing, speaking, and reading vocations, and for effective use of language in all aspects of life as an adult.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES -- The Department of Modern Foreign Languages serves several groups of students: (1) those whose academic field requires completion of one or more years of a foreign language; (2) those who choose a foreign language for completion of general studies requirements; (3) those who elect a minor in French or Spanish. Knowledge of a foreign language is an important part of basic preparedness for careers in government, public service, law, business, banking, communications and media, and education.

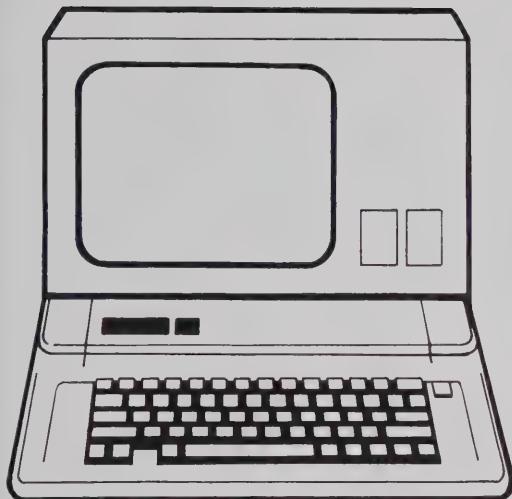

MUSIC -- The purpose of the Department of Music is to prepare and develop teachers of music on both the elementary and high school levels -- teachers who are sound musicians and cultured individuals whose personalities are suited to the profession.

DIVISION OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION AND ECONOMICS

SANDRA HENDERSON, CHAIR

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION -- The principle purpose of the Business Administration Department is to create an environment in which an individual can develop an inquiring mind and the ability to think objectively. The educational pattern that accomplishes this is a combination of courses that emphasize knowledge, skills, and tools as well as those that advance an administrative point of view.

The basic philosophy of the Business Administration Department program recognizes that business procedure is subject to change over time and that methods of tomorrow may bear little semblance to the techniques currently utilized. For this reason, stress is placed upon fundamental knowledge concerning the field of business administration and tools for problem solving and decision making.

ECONOMICS -- Economics play an important role in the life of every individual, the existence of states, and the well-being of nations. The growing complexity of life makes it not only desirable but vitally necessary for every citizen to acquire basic economic knowledge.

Courses offered are designed to give the basic and specialized knowledge in economics which will assist each person in the decision-making process vital to our way of life.

HISTORY -- Courses in history are designed to acquaint students with the origin and development of the political, social, economic, and cultural institutions of the United States, Europe, and the non-western world. Through such study, students learn to appreciate their heritage and can secure an intelligent approach to many of the problems they must face as American citizens today.

PSYCHOLOGY -- The major in psychology is aimed primarily at preparing the student to continue training in psychology at the graduate level; special interest courses are offered for both major and non-major students.

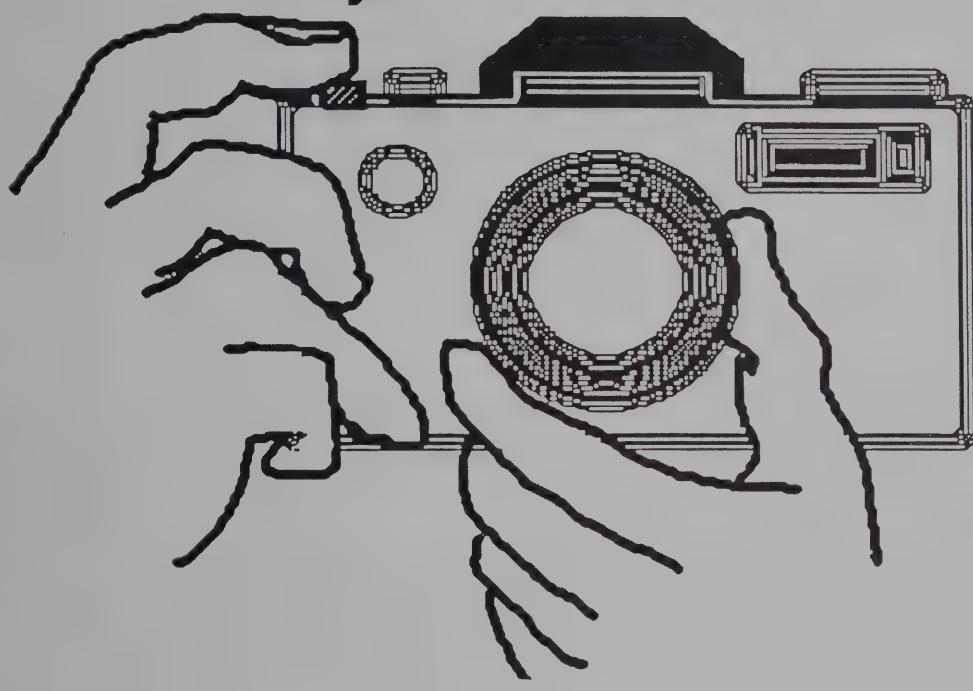

SOCIOLOGY/PHILOSOPHY -- The systematic study of the structure of society, the changes that occur in society, and the consequences of change, make up the province of sociology. Students with an interest toward understanding how society influences mankind's behavior, would find sociology stimulating and rewarding. The curriculum will prepare a student for graduate study and provides for student employability.

ATTAINING GOALS THROUGH ACADEMICS

THE GOAL OF INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER LEARNING IS TO EDUCATE AND PREPARE PEOPLE FOR CHALLENGING CAREERS AND LIVES. WEST VIRGINIA STATE COLLEGE ACCEPTED THIS CHALLENGE IN 1891 AND STILL STRIVES FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE FOR ALL WHO ATTEND.

A COLLEGE'S MAIN GOAL IS TO EDUCATE, AND WHETHER YOU PASS OR FAIL, EVERYONE LEARNS AT LEAST SOMETHING; WHETHER IT BE A VALUABLE LESSON OR THE AGE OF THE SOLAR SYSTEM. A STUDENT MUST BE WILLING TO MAKE AN EFFORT TO LEARN, ACCEPT NEW IDEAS, MAKE ASSUMPTIONS, AND ARRIVE AT CONCLUSIONS.

ONE'S COLLEGE YEARS ARE TO BE TEASERED: THIS IS A TIME OF NOT ONLY STRIVING FOR A DEGREE, BUT A TIME FOR MAKING LIFELONG FRIENDSHIPS.

WVSC GETS NEW SCIENCE FACILITIES. . .

page two • the yellow jacket • thursday • october 15, 1987

by Mary Ellen Perry

In the halls of the Davis Fine Arts building, where once you heard only the sounds of musicians playing and the artists creating, you now hear the unfamiliar voice of a physics professor discussing equations. The relocation is part of WVSC's plan to renovate the Hamblin Hall science building. According to college officials, the building will accommodate more students and to allow for better education of the students.

Construction for the annex began in September, and a fence was installed around the perimeter of the construction operations to provide for the safety of the students.

The new annex will offer a teaching auditorium containing benches that will add to the comfort and space of the students. It will be available for use by classes from all departments of the college. "The new auditorium will be the highlight of the campus," Oden said.

The annex will offer more laboratories, special lecturing rooms, student research facilities and controlled conditions for growing plants and animals for study. The annex will nearly double the size of the building.

The problem of parking due to the storing of equipment around the building was solved by the shifting of the faculty parking area to the lot behind the Carty House. The construction has caused a loss of only four student parking spaces.

The construction will be completed under the $5 million budget created for the project. Funds for the building and associated costs come from $73 million in bonds issued by the West Virginia Board of Regents in May of 1986.

Though the project began later than initially projected, the plan for completion is still targeted for May of 1989.

A formal ground breaking ceremony is being planned in 1989 to coordinate with National Education Week.

Career Day

Local businesses which can employ college students on a full-time or part-time basis were invited to participate in a career exploration day at WVSC.

The objective of Career Day is to acquaint underclassmen with various careers. This event is not to be confused with the recruitment program for graduating seniors.

"A new season has begun at West Virginia State College, a season that has at its' foundation a recommitment to excellence. A recommitment to excellence in teaching and learning," said Dr. Hazo W. Carter, president of West Virginia State College.

Today's students are the future," he said. "They will assume control of our cities, state and nation. Educators must teach students that the pursuit of excellence is not a destination, but a continuing journey."

Carter said that educators have a responsibility to provide a quality education to students because students will one day carry on the tradition of education. "All students should work to reach their potential and make a sustained effort to acquire knowledge and develop analytical powers."

GEORGE McGOVERN

THURSDAY
OCTOBER 22, 1987

George McGovern, former United States Senator and Democratic Presidential candidate came to WVSC on October 22nd. He spoke to students and faculty on the topics of the Middle East and the United States' presence in the Persian Gulf.

"It is not a question of whether we should be involved in the Persian Gulf," McGovern said.

"But we need to look at the procedure in which we got involved, if I had to answer a question as to why we were in the Gulf, I would be hard pressed to define what President Reagan has in mind," he said.

McGovern also criticized Reagan's lack of communication with Congress about his actions in the Gulf.

"Currently, we have a problem in that President Reagan has decided to ignore these discussions with Congress, this amounts to him saying,

"I don't need to obey the law, I can do what I want," he said.

"You can't be in the Gulf without the approval of the American Public, we don't need another Vietnam."

The Tactical Air Command Jazz Ensemble

The Tactical Air Command Jazz Ensemble, formed in 1953, is a throw back to the swing era when big bands toured and entertained audiences around the world. Today's big bands have a definite heritage going back to the traditional sounds of Air Force Major Glenn Miller. "In the Mood," and "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," are favorites one might hear at a typical TAC Jazz Ensemble concert. Unique arrangements by Toshiko Akiyoshi, Rob McConnell, and Maynard Ferguson are contemporary styles that add variety and contrast to each performance. Musicians from the band come from a wide variety of musical and educational backgrounds from across the United States, forming a melting pot of American talent. The group's versatility, when performing every musical style, including classical, country and rock, has earned them critical acclaim throughout the Eastern seaboard. Members of the group have performed professionally with artists Sarah Vaughn, Bob Hope, Roger Williams, Chet Atkins, and The Beach Boys, to name a few. The TAC Jazz Ensemble is proud of its' heritage and ability to provide entertainment for everyone.

RAMSEY LEWIS

Mr. Lewis was born in Chicago and has had classical piano lessons since the age of four. He attended the Chicago Musical College and was taught by the noted instructor, Dorothy Mendelsohn.

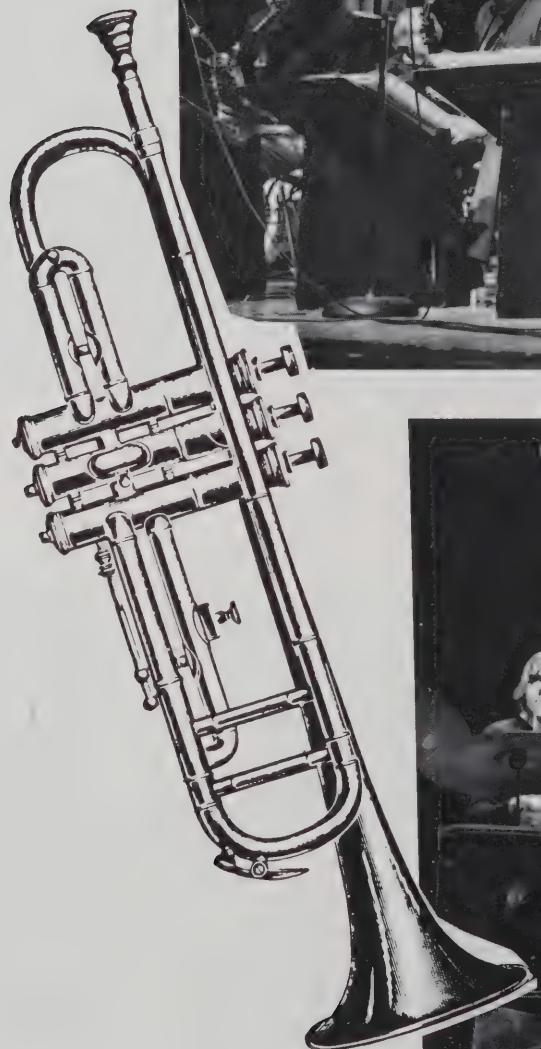

In Chicago, Lewis built himself a reputation in the Chicago Jazz Circuit and Ramsey Lewis & his trio were signed to a recording contract with Chess Records in 1958. The group became very successful, and their first million dollar album, which came six years later, was called The In Crowd.

Ramsey Lewis has a different approach to the trio. Every concert, Lewis plays the piano solo for about ten to fifteen minutes right in the middle of the concert.

He has recently made a new album, The Two of Us, which features the beautiful voice of Nancy Wilson and plans to do more work in the future with symphonic bands.

Orientation

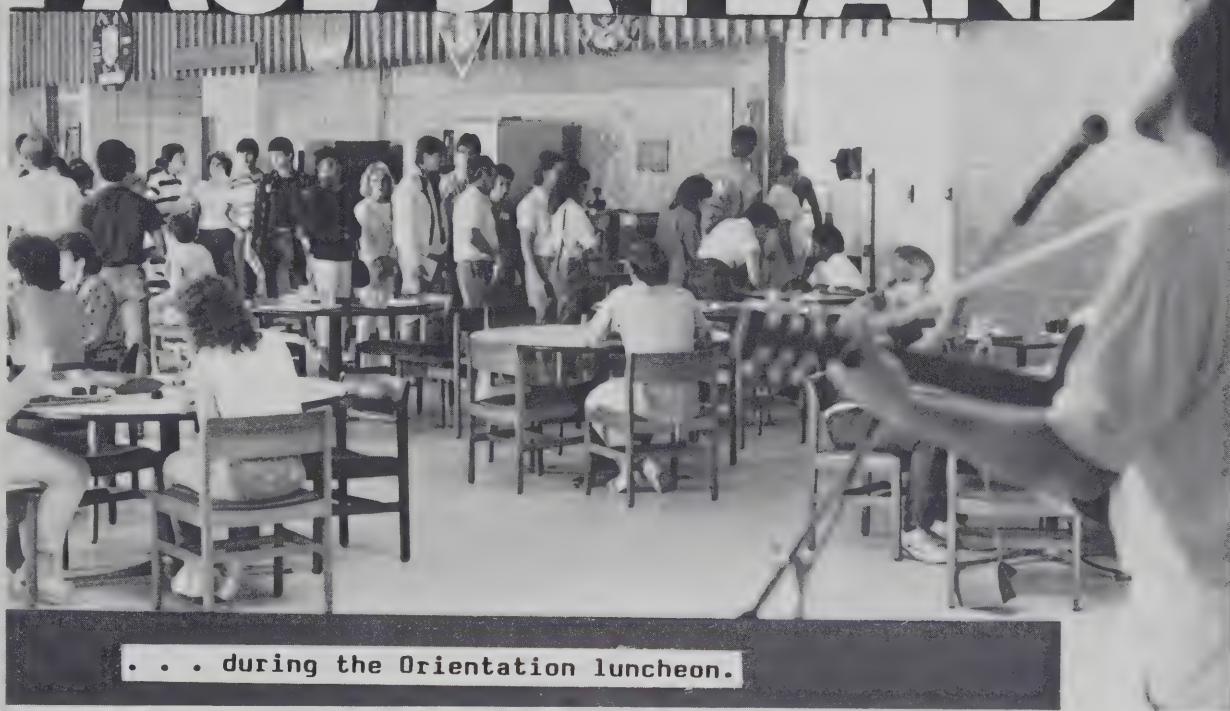

For many students, the transition to college is a confusing and often traumatic experience. The semester and summer orientation programs perform a significant and needed function by attempting to prevent student alienation and failure by communicating to the new student the concept of college as a self-directed, intellectually-oriented experience. Secondly, the orientation informs the student about the institution and its services, counsels the new student regarding educational, vocational, and personal problems which have to be met while in college, completes various mechanical procedures needed to enroll the student in classes, and in general, gets the new student off to the best possible start in a new career.

In addition to the programs for commuting students, residence hall students are informed of the rules governing the residence halls; introduced to their resident directors, resident assistants, and other staff; and begin forming lifelong friendships with the other residence hall students.

PAULA GIDDINGS

Author:

When and Where I Enter . . . The Impact of Black Women on Race and Sex in America

Discussing, for the first time:

"Black Women and Leadership in Civil Rights and Women's Rights Issues"

"The Relationship of Black Women and White Feminists"

"The Historical Role of Black Women in America"

Paula Giddings presents the first coherent analysis of the role of Black women in America, both past and present. Drawing on their speeches, diaries, letters and other original sources, she offers vivid portraits of such outstanding women as Rosa Parks, Fannie Lou Hamer, Mary McCleod Bethune and Ida B. Wells, among others. In addition, through documenting the collective struggle of Black women against racism and sexism, Ms. Giddings shows how Black women, by defying the imposed limitations on race and sex, loosened the chains around both.

Through a historical perspective, the author also explores contemporary issues such as the crisis of the Black family, the relationship of Black women to the present-day feminist movement, and the role of Black women in the current racial struggle.

ABOUT PAULA GIDDINGS

Paula Giddings is a graduate of Howard University (1969) who worked for Random House before becoming an editor at Howard University Press. Later she was Paris Bureau Chief for Encore American and Worldwide News. Her articles have appeared in The New York Times Book Review, The Washington Post, Jeune Afrique (Paris) and others. Presently, she is contributing editor and book review editor for Essence Magazine.

Ms. Giddings received a Ford Foundation grant for the completion of her book which has been widely reviewed and selected as a Book-Of-The-Month Club alternate.

Linder Speech Draws Many Student, Faculty Opinions

by James Blackwell

Elisabeth Linder, the mother of the first American killed by Nicaraguan contras, spoke to a group of students and faculty on the WVSC campus on October 5, 1987.

Linder was speaking to the students as part of her national fund raising tour to end American aid to the contras. Her son Benjamin, was reportedly shot and killed by members of Sandinistas, the governing body of Nicaragua.

Speaking emphatically, Linder blamed the Reagan administration's support of the Sandinistas for her son's death.

"The Reagan administration is responsible for many terrible acts in Nicaragua," Linder said. "We as individuals need to join together to stop the problems in Central America."

Elisabeth Linder

When asked by a listener in the audience if she felt President Reagan was to blame for her son's death, Linder replied "yes."

Response to the speaker was varied among students and faculty in the audience. Many listeners were impressed with the speaker's emotion.

"I thought Mrs. Linder was very moving," said Gerald Beller, political science professor at WVSC. "I am not overly critical of the contras as many others are, but it is interesting to hear someone so personally involved in a national cause."

One student critical of Linder's views was SGA President Mark Kelly. Kelly, a senior political science major, felt Linder was quick to blame the Reagan administration.

"It's my feeling that a man going into a dangerous situation without his government's backing has to realize the variety of opinions," she said. "But, I think it's great that we have the availability of different speakers on campus. danger he is in," Kelly said. Linder is speaking to colleges and organizations across the "I understand Mrs. Linder's country. Her tour is sponsored pain, but her son did not go into the Nicaragua Network Guest for Peace and Witness for Peace organizations.

Another student critical of Linder's views was Angie Smith, a junior education major. She felt Linder distorted the President's role in her son's death.

"The death of her son is an obvious tragedy, but I don't agree with the way Linder seemed to put the gun in Reagan's hand," she said. "I understand that she needs to personalize the issue, but let's face it, Central America is a decidedly unhealthy area to be in."

"TAKE THAT!"

YEAR OF THE MAGICMAN

The big questions before the West Virginia State College and Kentucky State University game that kicked off the new season in Frankfort, Kentucky on August 29, 1987 were these: Could State put together an effective offensive line and would the experience gained by the 1986 freshmen make a difference in 1987?

According to the West Virginia Collegiate Conference's coaches, the answers were: No, to both as they voted the Yellow Jackets to finish last in the conference. After all, for the last three years under Coach Clifton Moore, State's football teams had gone through each season like lambs, with only an occasional sting of an opponent. While the team returned a well-balanced defense, led by All-Conference defensive players, Pat Clark and Hershell Reveal, the big question mark, as usual, was the offense--especially the offensive line. The plus for Coach Moore was the unusual experience of having the same quarterback for two consecutive years. . . and what a difference a second-year quarterback by the name of Keith Franklin made for the Yellow Jackets!

The team made its 1987 debut a successful one with a 26-16 defeat of Kentucky State, whose home opener was spoiled by Quarterback Franklin who passed for one touchdown and carried the ball twice for two more touchdowns.

All Conference Most Valuable Player

On the road again, the Yellow Jacket football team invaded the home field of Virginia State University where they faced a stronger, beefier team of players than those at Kentucky State. Greeted with "Where is the Varsity?" the Yellow Jackets quieted the Virginia State fans by finessing the heavy meat up front for Virginia State to come away with a 36-36 tie.

After playing their first two games on the road, the Yellow Jackets showed their joy of finally playing in the friendly confines of Lakin Field by blanking the University of District of Columbia 24-0. Against a porous District of Columbia defense, sophomore, Keith Franklin directed the aerial attack with the poise normally characteristic of a senior for 221 yards with no interceptions and two touchdowns. The sting of the Yellow Jacket defense inflicted severe mental and physical pain on the D.C. offense rendering them incapable of moving the ball. The result was an exciting 24-0 home opener for Yellow Jacket fans.

State's first conference game, Concord 2-0 and ranked 23rd in the nation at game time, was to test the team's buoyant nature. The defenses played extremely well, while a downpour throughout the game kept both offenses bogged down. However, with 45 seconds left in the opening period, State's Clinton Sills returned a punt 70 yards for a touchdown, and the Yellow Jackets held on to nip Concord 7-6.

With one of the best starts after four games, only three State teams had better starts over the past 33 seasons, WVSC was ranked 19th in the nation as it took on another undefeated conference team in Glenville. Coach Moore's offensive game plan was inventive--and better yet, for State, it worked. The Yellow Jackets, who were expected to emphasize the talents of Quarterback Franklin, sprang reserve tailback, Bradley Robinson on Glenville. Robinson entered the game midway through the third period and in less than two quarters rushed for 120 yards and two touchdowns and led State to a 35-23 victory. For their outstanding performances, Robinson and Pat Clark were selected conference offensive and defensive players of the week, respectively.

Thousands returned to State for Homecoming but only 1500 cold and rain-drenched diehard fans were still in the stands in the last minute of the game when quarterback, Keith Franklin dropped the ball, scooped it off the wet field, and pierced Fairmont's stout-hearted defense with a touchdown pass to tight end, Dale Young. The final score was 24-20, a sweet victory for the Yellow Jackets over the team picked to finish first in the conference.

After spotting Fairmont a ten point lead, State got serious in the second half and viciously pursued Fairmont's backs and ends with an aggressive defensive crew, grounded by Clinton Sills. Sills was like a rocket booster, once ignited, he couldn't be switched off. Named Conference Defensive Player of the Week, he had six solo tackles, seven assists, one interception, and broke up three passes and a field goal attempt. Also in the second half, Franklin proved why State fans had started to consider him the premier quarterback in the conference. With a supporting offensive line that was blowing open holes, and sticky-fingered receivers like Julius McLeod and Greg Banks making the big catches, Franklin rushed for 64 yards and a touchdown and passed for 176 yards and two touchdowns. For his thrilling play he was named Conference Offensive Player of the Week for the third time in six weeks.

"Greg Banks breaks the grip of would-be tackler as Julius McLeod prepares to help out."

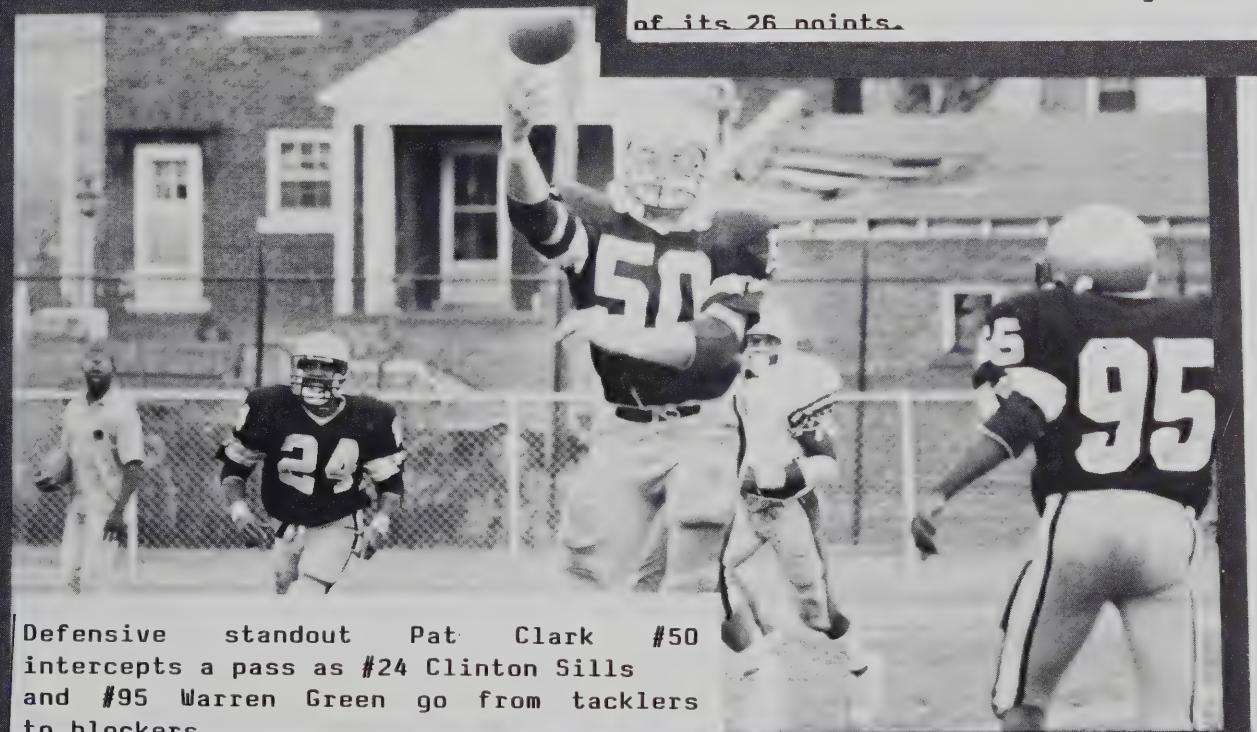

"Julius McLeod #86 eludes tackler after an electrifying catch."

In the seventh game of the season, the Yellow Jackets outpassed, outrushed, and outdefended West Liberty to record a 26-13 victory. For inspiration, State entered the game ranked 10th in the nation. The chief engineer for the Yellow Jackets' offensive show was quarterback, Keith Franklin. By the end of the game, with the help of the offensive line, the West Virginia conference total offensive leader has passed for 267 yards and three touchdowns and rushed for 55 yards. Playing good old-fashioned defense, the Yellow Jackets had nine sacks, three by defensive tackle, John Johnson, and a blocked punt by defensive back, Malcolm Spence that fell out of the endzone to give State two of its 26 points.

Defensive standout Pat Clark #50 intercepts a pass as #24 Clinton Sills and #95 Warren Green go from tacklers to blockers.

In the next game, the West Virginia State Yellow Jackets remained unbeaten after defeating Salem College at Salem by a score of 35-9. Keith Franklin, the WVIAC total offensive leader with 1802 yards in eight games, was named "Offensive Player of the Week" for the fourth time. Franklin completed 12 of 19 passes for 151 yards and three touchdowns. Franklin also rushed for 44 yards.

The Yellow Jacket defense was led by a core of linebackers: Johnny Goodwin, Pat Clark, Dennis Yancey, and Tim Gaillard, who had a total of 13 tackles and 11 quarterback sacks. Clinton Sills and Malcolm Spence anchored State's very stingy secondary.

The State-Tech game is always a war for the bragging rights for who's "Number One" in the valley. However, State entered the game ranked number eight in the nation and a chance to wrap up at least a share of the conference championship.

While Tech won the ground war by 179-78 yards, State's aerial attack destroyed Tech with a huge 356 yards through the air. When the offensive ground attack failed, State released its intercontinental John Chappell missile who covered 87 yards in nine seconds on one kickoff and 94 yards to a touchdown in ten seconds on a second kickoff. By the end of the game, State had bombed Tech into surrendering the "Valley Championship" title with a 37-23 win.

If ever there were any doubts regarding Keith Franklin's importance to the Yellow Jackets, the State-Shepherd game removed those doubts. With Franklin on the sidelines with an injured right ankle obtained in the last two minutes of the Tech game, the Yellow Jackets played their worst game of the season. The result was a 20-7 loss to the last-place team in the conference. Coming into the game ranked sixth in the nation with sole possession of first place in the conference and a playoff bid locked up, State's fatigued defense gave up an unbelievable 410 yards while State's stumbling offense could manage only 138 total yards. The score might have been worse if it had not been for the magical and powerful toes of Bob Ashley. State's All-Conference punter's booming and well-placed punts time after time got the Yellow Jackets out of trouble and caused Shepherd to start their offensive drives near their own goal line.

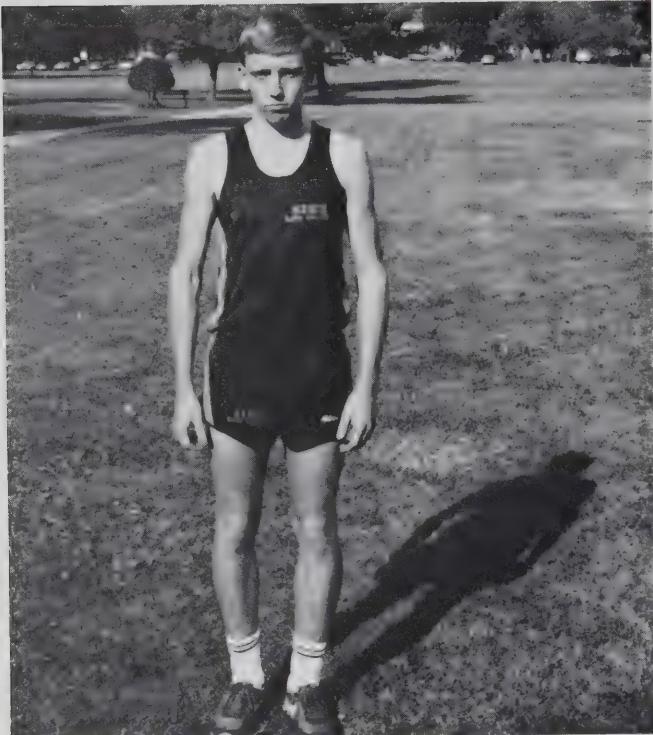

The story of the year was the emergence of a dominating offensive line that intimidated opposing defenses with force and quickness, an improved backfield and a defense that had never been better. Ending the season as conference CO-CHAMPIONS, State left the other conference coaches wondering what happened to the team they voted to come in last. The response of the 1987 YELLOW JACKETS was TAKE THAT!

The Yellow Jackets celebrated their #5 National ranking and lock on the conference championship after the Tech game.

1988 TEAMS ORDER A REPRINT OF 1987

The hallmarks of men and women in the West Virginia State College 1987 Track Program, the most compelling of their qualities and the very symbols of State track participants were their speed, strength, toughness, and confidence. In the grand tradition of past State teams, the 1987 Cross Country, indoor and outdoor teams achieved remarkable success during the season.

In Cross Country, the women's team finished second in the conference championships while the men's team came in fifth. State's Crystal Neal performed gloriously throughout the season and earned All-Conference honors and the honor of being the College's first Women's Cross Country runner to qualify for the National Championships. Her teammate, Kim Erskine, was named to the All-Conference Second Team.

The remarkable prominence of State's indoor men's and women's teams was evidenced by their 13th place finish out of the 132 teams participating in the National Indoor Championships. Particularly noteworthy was State's Larry Angle's Third Place in the high jump and his being named to the N.A.I.A. Indoor All-American Team.

The outstanding performance of both teams in 7 outdoor track meets and relays were among the most dramatic in memory. Their triumphs earned them a place in the National Outdoor Championships where the team finished 12th out of 218 participating teams. Having earned 3rd place in the Indoor Championships, Larry Angle took to the runway like an aroused Yellow Jacket, his eyes on fire. He pounded through his run and attained a height that won for him the National High Jump Championship. His victory earned him All-American honors for the 3rd consecutive year.

The photo finishes of the 1987 teams led to Coach Glover Smiley being named the N.A.I.A. Area 7 Coach of the Year. Both the 1988 teams and the Coach have ordered a reprint of the 1987 photo finish.

FLASHES OF BRILLIANCE

A year of transition and a year of youth trademarked the Lady Jackets' 87-88 basketball season. The loss of All-Conference rebounding and scoring record setter, Donna Gordon, and the lack of playing experience from last year's team hurt this year's team. Additionally, this year's team had to learn a new system under new head coach, Bud Francis. The youth, Maria Battle, being the only senior, and the lack of height were definite factors in the Jackets not achieving the goal of a winning season.

The Lady Jackets faced a tough schedule. Even with the tough schedule, the Jackets played good basketball. Throughout the season there was the precision shooting of Debbie Creech and memorable performances by Regina Marshall, Willie Mae Thomas, Maria Battle, Tracy Hamilton, and Lisa Bell. Many times this young and exuberant team seemed overly matched against formidable foes on the basketball court. However, regardless of the odds, the team went out and played hard with flashes of brilliance in every single game.

Next season, the knowledge, skill, and attitude of the returning players will help shape their future. The 1988-89 Lady Jackets' opponents are hereby warned. This game-tested core of talented players are going to go from flashes of brilliance to consistently lighting up scoreboards throughout the conference.

KEEPING THE GAME IN FOCUS

The Yellowjackets' 1987-88 record was a letdown to the team. No matter how hard they tried, they had trouble keeping each game in focus. All season, the Jackets got off to quick starts only to find themselves squandering big leads by the end of the game. Still, State fans saw plenty of excitement as the Jackets were participants in some overtime games and 9 games lost by four points or less.

From last year's team that compiled a 31-4 record and had the heart-stopping loss by two points in the national championship game, the Yellowjackets lost three players who were drafted by professional basketball teams and lost their coach and an assistant coach. This year was a year of change: a new coach, Percy "Chico" Caldwell, and three new players moved into the starting line-up, plus there were new offensive and defensive systems to learn. While it was obvious that State had plenty of talent, it did not seem to be able to get anybody on the team to take charge--to provide the leadership they needed. Game after game they would get the opposing team down by a large margin and then lose their concentration on the game; thus, failing to put the opposing team away.

Long-time Jacket fans found the more patient, planned offense a pleasant surprise from past teams. The intensity displayed on defense by this team was seldom displayed by recent Yellowjacket teams. Additionally, Coach Caldwell's approach to substitution was very unique. Few coaches consistently substitute their entire second team for the first team as Coach Caldwell did most of the season. Given the reaction of the fans, the play of the talented team was a joy to watch as they never seemed to lose a lead or leave a game with the team behind. The coach also said that their play was something to really be proud of and that the full involvement of the entire bench would make a winning difference in the future. Three of the four seniors played the center position this year, so if replacements can be found for them, the other conference teams had better watch out. State basketball will be back in focus!

THIS BUD'S FOR YOU

When the college decided last spring to reactivate the women's softball team, it did so without having uniforms, equipment, a practice field, a schedule, and more importantly, players or a coach. While other teams were playing ball, State Athletic Officials were not even sure there was enough interest among the college's female population to field a team that would play for its own self-respect with the hope that the momentum would carry-over into 1988. Facing such challenges, State Athletic Officials wondered what they should ask for first.

How about a Bud? Coach Bud Francis that is! Once lured into taking the job, the veteran coach wasted little time pulling the women's softball program together. After evaluating local talent, Coach Francis quickly built a team that proved to be very competitive and gained the interest of the college community.

The season was led by the strength of its hitting. Maria Battle led the team with a .462 batting average, followed closely by Josette Saunders with a .453 average and Peggy Simms with a .422 average. Rounding out the big hitters were Nancy Hermansdorfer at .345, Carolyn Hendricks at .339, and Kimberly Erskine at .305.

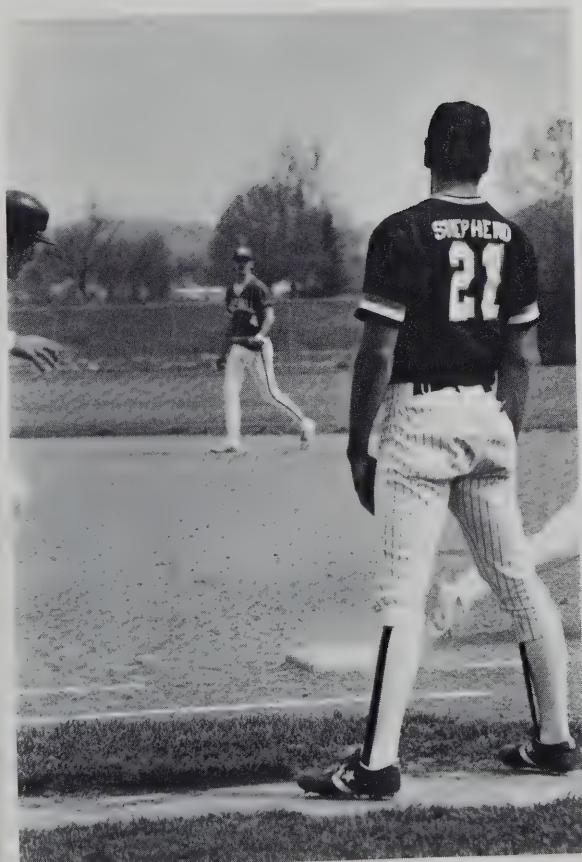

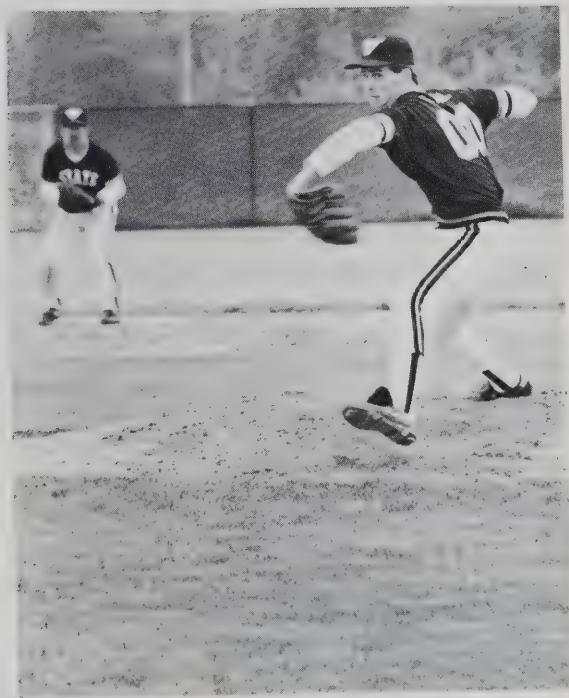

The team's pitching peaked after the eighth game of the season with the team winning eight of its last eleven games. Both Lori Bush and Peggy Simms were impressive, with Lori leading the way with a 5-4-1 record and Peggy pitching her way to a 5-5-0 record.

The young team proved to be a force in 1987 by playing tough with each of its opponents and will be a contender in 1988. The college is happy that someone asked in 1987, "How about a Bud?" and responded with "This Bud's for you." Welcome, Coach Bud Francis and the Yellowjacket Softball team. Job well done!

THE "SCRATCH AND DENT" CREW

When the 1987 college baseball season started all bets were on West Virginia State to win it all. State's 1987 team featured a senior-dominated and experienced roster. The Yellow Jackets returned all but two of its regulars from the 1986 squad. It had back the hitters who had so overpowered their opponents in 1986 that they had been tagged the "Wrecking Crew". The 1987 team was deep in pitchers. It had the best coach in the state of West Virginia. It was a part of a baseball program considered the top conference program in the last decade. State's teams had reached the finals of the NAIA District 28 play-offs nine years in a row. The hills were alive with the sounds of "State, State" and "cracking bats".

The first two games went as expected with the Yellow Jackets taking a double-header from Davis and Elkins. However, over the next seven games, the unexpected happened. State lost 5 of the 7 games it played. Coach Bailey observed that the other teams were playing State "as if it were a world series game and we're taking it like another game." The coach's main concern was over the team's erratic play from inning-to-inning. He commented that while the team was a good team, it didn't have the team discipline he would like. "Sometimes we're just too confident and complacent."

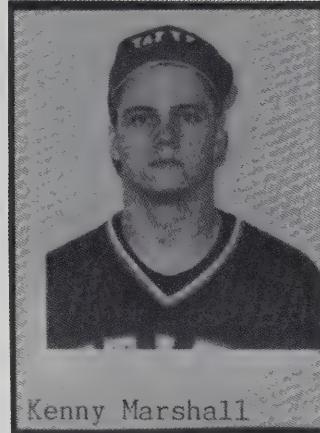

Working hard on these tendencies, the team was able to win 6 of the next 7 games, before falling into a 3 game slump.

State's third baseman, Rusty Clark came up with one of the most unique ideas ever tried for reviving the team's drowsy bats. One day in front of the team, he put a bunch of the bats in a locker, put an alarm clock in there with them, then shut the door. When the alarm went off, he started beating and kicking on the locker and yelling for the bats to wake up. Sound crazy? Well the logic was simple. According to Clark, "we were so tight I knew somebody had to do something to loosen everyone up." More importantly, did it work? The results speak for themselves. The Yellow Jackets won 11 of the final 13 games in the season. While not quite reaching the hitting standards of the 1986 "wrecking crew", as they relaxed they developed a way of manufacturing runs without insulting the other teams with their bats.

Coach Bailey was particularly pleased with his pitching staff, which was deep enough for him to use a six-man rotation. State's starters included Bryan Hurst and Steve Seakelly from Logan, John Priddy from Nitro, Kevin Hall from DuPont, Marvin Shepherd from Mount View, and Dusty Smith from Buffalo-Putnam. According to the coach the pitching was good enough to keep the team in nearly all games they played in 1987.

The NAIA District 28 semi-final games were summed up by Coach Bailey as "We were just out played." "It boiled down to fundamentals." In similar situations in both games, State batters were not able to move runners via the bunt. The first game was lost by a score of 13-12 and the second one by a score of 9-8.

While the team may have been disappointed over their record, all Yellow Jacket fans were proud of their accomplishments. This was the sixth consecutive 20-win season for the baseball team. State came in second in the conference with an 18-4 record. It was also a season filled with exciting baseball. For example, in what may be a first for State baseball, the first four batters for the Jackets, (Bobby Setser, Tsruki Yoshimura, Rusty Clark, and Brian Lawrence) all hit home runs in a game against Alderson-Broaddus. While the 1987 team began the season as the "wrecking crew" and went through the season as the "scratch and dent" crew(as renamed by Senior short stop Tim Christy), it was a great season.

While Seniors such as Setser, Clark, Lawrence, Christy, Holden, Yoshimura and others will be missed, the 1988 team should provide the fans with an exciting baseball season. The combination of new talents from incoming Freshmen and the returning team members' experience, enthusiasm, and winning tradition should give the Yellow Jackets the momentum they need in '88 for another great season.

This year's Homecoming activities included many different activities for alumni and students, beginning on Thursday October 1, and running through Saturday October 3. For the Alumni the activities started early on Thursday morning, October 1, with a golf tournament at Shawnee Park at 8a.m. The day ended at 9p.m. with the "W" Club Coaches Reception at the Charleston House Holiday Inn.

For the students there was a pep rally that began at 12:30 Thursday in front of the Student Union Building, and at 8p.m. the coronation pageant of Homecoming King and Queen took place in the Ferrell Hall Auditorium. A reception followed the coronation in the Ferrell foyer at 9p.m. The day ended with the traditional homecoming bonfire at the WVSC baseball field at 10p.m.

On Friday, October 2, the activities started with the second half of the golf tournament at Shawnee Park. The tourney was followed by the ROTC Hall of Fame induction at 1:30 in Ferrell Hall. The evening was closed with the Kappa Fraternity dance for all WVSC students. Also on Friday there was a President's wine and cheese reception followed by a dinner at the Charleston House Holiday Inn honoring the classes of 1932, 37, 42, 47, 52, 62, 67, 72, 77 and 82. All were invited to attend. Friday night also included the homecoming concert featuring jazz artist Ramsey Lewis. On Saturday was the Sports Hall of Fame luncheon followed by the Homecoming parade. After the parade the excitement continued for alumni and students with the Homecoming football game which matched the WVSC Yellow Jackets against Fairmont State; and the home team did not disappoint the homecoming crowd that sat through the cold and rain. The final score was State 27, Fairmont 24. Following the game, the Trinidad Steel Drum Band and the Greek Step Show took place in the Fleming Hall gymnasium and following the show a reception was held for alumni and students in the College Union. The activities ended with a dusk to dawn dance for students and the dance for the alumni.

MR. STATE

The Tradition of Mr. and Miss State

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

The West Virginia State College Student Government Association announces the selection and elevation of two members of the student body to its highest level of prominence. On October 1, 1987, the 1987-88 Mr. and Miss State join the exclusive lineage of the few students to be vested with the title, responsibilities, and entitlements of these prestigious positions.

While the traditionally solemn rite of the Coronation Pageant consists of the placing of a crown on the heads of Mr. and Miss State, it symbolizes two individuals willing to accept the responsibility to reflect to the general public the ideal image of a West Virginia State College student. Their acceptance of the titles implies their faithful devotion to the moral and ethical characteristics expected of West Virginia State College students. For the faith the students have placed in them, they pledge the wholehearted application of their faculties to maintaining high academic standards. To repay the loyalty of their fellow students for this priceless honor within the limits of their abilities, they agree to promote, by positive action at all times, the well-being of West Virginia State College.

The Military Science department faculty is dedicated to the development of the student as a whole person. Through instructions and training they place major emphasis on teaching students the merits of cooperation, honesty, integrity, and loyalty, as well as the importance of responsibility and self confidence. In addition, some of the most valuable features of military education, such as attention to duty, relating to authority, and appreciation for order, are instilled in all students through the Military Science Curriculum.

Students participate in campus life through election of ROTC Queen

The ROTC program gives a valuable opportunity to build for the future by enabling them to earn a college degree and an officer's commission as a Second Lieutenant at the same time. Armed with a degree and a commission, the WVSC graduate has the opportunity to serve on active duty in the U.S. Army, or serve in an Army Reserve or National Guard unit while pursuing a civilian career.

West Virginia State College has announced the dates and formats for their summer basketball camps for 1987. There will be three sessions to the "Winning Edge Mini-Camps." The first two sessions will run from June 15 to 17, and June 18 to 20. These mini-camps will be open to boys entering grades four through eight for each of the three sessions.

South Carolina St. Coach Named By Yellow Jackets

By CHUCK LANDON
Daily Mail Sports Writer

Percy "Wes" Williams has been named head basketball coach at South Carolina State University.

Caldwell, 35, has been named head coach at South Carolina State for the past two years, replacing Richard Tredway.

Caldwell was recommended to the Board of Regents by Percy Williams, who is the acting president of the university. The other two candidates were well-known basketball coaches, including Williams and Virginia Tech coach Frankie Allen.

"We recommended Williams and Tredway to acting president," said Williams. "The other two candidates were well-known basketball coaches, including Williams and Virginia Tech coach Frankie Allen."

Tredway declined to comment, but was ranked the top candidate.

Hazo Carter New President

Dr. Hazo W. Carter, Jr., has been named the ninth president of West Virginia State College.

The announcement of Carter's selection was made June 8 by the West Virginia Board of Regents at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Carter has been president of Philander Smith College in Little Rock, Arkansas, since 1983. From 1977 to 1983, he was vice president for student affairs at Norfolk State University.

He holds a doctorate in education from Vanderbilt University, a master's degree from the University of Illinois, and a bachelor's from Tennessee State University.

His wife is the former Phyllis Harden, an attorney.

It was rumored during the search that Williams had been considered.

Each Caldwell's successes contributed to his selection. "And he has a strong family life. He impressed the board with his knowledge of basketball and his willingness to get along with others," said one source.

Williams is also a strong family man. He is married to Carol Williams and has three children.

Williams is unavailable for comment.

Caldwell has 17 years of experience. After receiving his degree from Vanderbilt University in 1968, he taught in the classroom for 10 years.

He has been a coach for the past seven years, including the last five at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. His 1986-87 record was 17-15.

Caldwell moved to Livingston University (Livingston, Ala.) as an assistant coach in 1980.

He became South Carolina State's head coach four years ago and according to Bulldogs' sports information director Bill Hamilton compiled a 48-65 record. S.C. State was 14-15 last season and 10-18 in 1985-86, 11-16 in 1984-85 and 13-16 in 1983-84, Hamilton said.

The Bulldogs competed in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference along with Bethune-Cookman, Delaware State, Coppin State, Howard University, Morgan State, North Carolina A&T and Florida A&M.

S.C. State averaged 68.1 points last season while yielding 70.7. The team shot 45 percent from the floor and 33 percent from the free-throw line.

Hamilton said Caldwell prefers a disciplined style of play.

Howard Expects State To Improve

By DON HAGER
Daily Mail Sports Editor

Football 101 was a tough class.

Maybe Football 201 will be more enjoyable.

When Dunbar High School all-stater Britt Howard joined the West Virginia State Yellow Jackets last fall, he didn't expect his introduction to college football to be a snap. But he also didn't expect to spend almost all of his time in the classroom.

Howard not only won a starting job at nose guard as a freshman, but found himself on the field with the defensive unit much of the time as the Yellow Jackets' offense — short on linemen and experienced quarterbacks — stumbled.

"It was hard mentally," the 6-1, 270-pound Howard said at State's press day in Institute on Thursday, "knowing the offense wasn't going to score and that we'd be back on the field in three plays."

Fortunately for the Yellow Jackets, their defense was tough and they salvaged three of the 10 games.

The defense remains strong this season, and Howard is looking forward to Football 201 because he foresees an improved team.

"We have running backs. Our offensive line is bigger and has more experience at the line of scrimmage," said Keith Yancey.

Replacing Howard will be Steve Moore, who has added 20 pounds to his weight over the past year.

yards in the air and 100.9 on the ground.

There will be something different about the veteran defensive unit because some players will move to defensive tackle.

"Last year, I was expected to play nose guard. I had to go home and stack up everything in the middle," he said. "This year, I'm doing more pass rushing."

"Although Britt was a freshman, he had to put him into the thick of things," said State Coach Clifton Moore. "He developed into our most consistent defensive lineman. He was a ferocious player, and he's versatile enough to play tackle. He has some quickness (4.9 seconds in the 40-yard dash)."

The strength of the Yellow Jackets' defense is the linebacking of Pat Clark, Hershell Reveal, Dennis Yancey, Tony Seay, James Shook and Johnny Goodwin. Clark, the top defender in the West Virginia Conference, has attracted the attention of pro football scouts.

"It gives me confidence (playing with strong linebacking)," said Clark. "I know I can reach back and get some help."

Moore said State had 60 players for practice, but lost seven prospective recruits when they were offered scholarships by other schools. One New Jersey recruit had picked the Yellow Jackets over Syracuse.

Franklin keys State comeback

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Quarterback Keith Franklin threw a 52-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and scored two touchdowns on one-yard runs in the fourth period to spark West Virginia State to a 26-16 victory over Kentucky State in a college football opener Saturday night.

Franklin's scoring bomb went to Larry Williams for the Yellow Jackets' first touchdown. Still in the first period, Mike Foster ran 15 yards for a touchdown to give West Virginia State a 13-7 lead.

Kentucky State took a 7-0 lead in the second period when Herb Hammond threw a third touchdown pass to Jon Brown.

Brown kicked a 27-yard field goal in the second period to tie the game at 13-13.

W. Va. State First Winner

West Virginia State was the first college football team to win a game this season, downing Kentucky State 26-16 at Frankfort, Ky., on Saturday night.

Sophomore quarterback Keith Franklin rushed for 112 yards and two touchdowns and threw 155 yards and a score to pace the Yellow Jackets.

Tim Wells hauled in a 48-yard scoring pass from Franklin. John Chappell ran 12 yards for another six-pointer.

WVSC coach Clifton Moore praised Franklin. "He made some nice cuts back inside for good gains," he said.

Set in New Brighton, Union of South Africa in 1950, "Master Harold . . . and the Boys" is a play about a family — the boy and his offstage parents, his dominant mother and crippled father — and about friendship. The family is strained by self-interest and the friendship is buffeted by incipient racism. It is a story of a boy's will and a man's way, a boy's loss of illusion and a man's quest for a renewal of innocence.

Legislators disagree on regents' role, fate

By Curtis Austin
STAFF WRITER

The fate of the West Virginia Board of Regents and consolidation of state colleges were debated Tuesday when members of the Legislature's education committees and college students met at West Virginia State College.

"Can you justify the Board of Regents?" student panelist Debra Payne of the Young Democrats asked the legislators. The legislative panel consisted of Delegates Lyle Sattes, D-Kanawha; and John Overington, R-Martinsburg; and Sens. Keith Burdette, D-Wood; and Buffy Warner, R-Morgantown.

Sattes, Overington and Burdette, while sometimes critical of the role of the regents, said the basic idea of a governing body was sound.

But Warner, who waited for the question to weave its way to him, simply said "No." A long pause followed. "I can't justify the Board of Regents," Warner said. Warner, a member of the Senate committee on education, said he favored the idea of appointing a chancellor to head the state's colleges and universities. Such a person should be given the authority to make the tough decisions and enforce them, he said.

Burdette, Senate education

chairman, disagreed with Warner. "I'm not opposed to the structure of the Board of Regents," he said. "I'm just not satisfied with their performance."

Burdette said part of the reason for the board's justification was a matter of accountability. "In any system there has to be a boss. And the question in higher education is who's minding the store."

But giving too much power to one individual, as opposed to a board, would create a "dictatorship," Burdette said.

Overington, a member of the House Committee on Education, agreed. "The board may need a little fine tuning," Overington told the audience of about 200, "but the structure is sound."

House education Chairman Sattes, said it would not be a good idea "to have multiple boards and multiple chancellors competing for the same existing funds." But Sattes said that might indeed happen if the board was dismantled.

THE GRADUATE DINNER

The Graduate Dinner is hosted by the president in tribute to those students who are completing their courses of study at the College and who will, upon graduation, join the ranks of its distinguished alumni. The dinner is a way of saying congratulations and good luck as students go forth as graduates of the institution and as practicing professionals—indeed as "West Virginia State College in Action." Among the honored guests at the dinner are the commencement marshals. As faculty members who are graduates of the institution, they "escort" the commencement processional and, in so doing, help to induct the new graduates into the customs and traditions of the College.
